

A call to arts

16 October 2007

For immediate release

Following exhibitions of work by local artists Emily Ketteringham (em-k.com) and Jason Lunn (jasonlunn.com) Minuteman Press are issuing a call to other talented Bristol artists who would like their work displayed prominently in the windows of Minuteman Press' print centre.

Artwork will be displayed in the high profile Bedminster location for around six months.

The most recent display features the distinctive creations of Emily Ketteringham; a collection of six screen prints and collages depicting colourful buildings and locations in Bristol.

Minuteman are seeking images of Bristol which could take the form of people, places or anything else that comes to mind! The brief is deliberately wide open and represents a splendid marketing opportunity for artists seeking exposure for their work.

Artists are encouraged to contact Minuteman Press directly; contact details are listed at minutemanbristol.com.

Quotations

Peter Wise one of the Director's at Minuteman Press commented "The sheer number of passers by that stop and smile as they view the artwork displays has been a really pleasant surprise. We had hoped that fellow Bristolians would enjoy seeing Bristol in art and we have not been disappointed."

Peter added "I was informed recently by a passenger stepping off a Bristol bus that they always look forward to queuing in traffic outside the Minuteman Press print centre due to the attractive displays that are ever present."

Ryan Smith, Minuteman Press's Graphic Designer added "The vision was to combine art with commerce; to be able to give something back to the community. It is great that we have been able to achieve this."
